CHILDREN'S MENTAL HEALTH CONFERENCE

School-based professionals, classroom teachers, administrators, mental health clinicians, school nurses, and paraprofessionals are increasingly challenged to effectively meet the needs of youth with social, emotional, and behavioral challenges. In schools, tight budgets, high-stakes testing, and Zero Tolerance policies haven't made the task any easier. In clinical settings, these youths can be extremely difficult to work with, engage in treatment, and help. By the time these youths end up in juvenile detention and treatment settings, they are often alienated, disenfranchised, and marginalized and have lost faith in those trying to help them.

This conference is about how to start moving things in the right direction, and features cutting-edge interventions and dynamic speakers.

TOPICS TO INCLUDE:

- No-Drama Discipline
- Collaborative & Proactive Solutions
- Kids Do Well If They Can (MOVE)
- When The Educational Goals Didn't Change
- Identifying Lagging Skills and Unsolved Problems
- Moving Beyond Survive: A Pedagogy of Mattering
- Looking Beyond Behaviorally Challenged Kids
